ATTENDANCE MATTERS

Welcome back. I hope you all had a lovely break over the Easter holidays. As the Government have started to release the shackles of 'Lockdown Part 3', and thoughts turn to holidays, may I take this opportunity to remind everyone that holidays in term-time are still unauthorised. If you are thinking of booking time off during term time please come and see me regarding the possible implications and ramifications.

Thanks again. Mr Southern

Message from Jacob's Mum in Year 5.....

Our eldest, Jacob, is raising money for RNIB - a UK charity that supports people who are blind or partially sighted. For those who don't know our family very well, our children are sight impaired and will eventually lose any vision they currently have. With this in mind, RNIB provides visually impaired people (young and old) with a wide variety of everyday tools to help them lead a "normal" life (because, after all, the only difference is sight!) Jacob currently gets audiobooks and free magazines from RNIB, which means that he can enjoy books and world news independently, just like his sighted friends do.

Jacob will be running, walking, cycling and scooting the distance of a marathon throughout the month of May to raise money for his chosen charity who provides a fantastic service to Jacob now, as well as in the future, and to many other visually impaired people across the UK. You can click on the Facebook link to follow his journey and leave him a message of support. If you feel you're able to, we'd be very grateful for any donations received via his Just Giving page 💖
